Will dust settle for holiday?

Occupy members already arrested in separate incidents past two weekends ◗ City says lessons learned last year ◗ But uncertainty surrounds Occupy's 'National Gathering' rally

Though at least four separate protest groups descending on Philadelphia's Historic District will compound the chaos of the 600,000 revelers expected to attend Wawa Welcome America! festival, city officials said yesterday they did not expect a major disruption.

"It's a very secure area," Managing Director Rich Negrin said. "There's a strong police presence. We have the joint operations, as we usually do. This is something we do really well – it's business as usual for us in the city."

Negrin said that, though there is concern about counter-demonstrations, the neighborhood is largely under federal jurisdiction. "The Philadelphia Police Department is only there when things go badly, which really hasn't been case so far," he said. "Beyond that, it's about making sure people have the right to enjoy Philadelphia this week and visit our historic sites and get around safely."

As far as Occupy's National Gathering, which has already resulted in 27 arrests, including one last Saturday, Negrin said that both the city and protesters have benefited from lessons learned since last summer's Dilworth Plaza occupation and subsequent eviction.

"I think what we've learned is the majority of folks are well-intended," he said, noting that a sense of mutual respect has developed between police Civil Affairs officers and Occupiers. "The majority of folks are really about pure civil disobedience and that's different than criminal behavior ... activity that's going to get them arrested."

Occupy participant Nathan Kleinman also said he expected the holiday to be peaceful, though he can't predict the actions of others. "I don't expect any clashes with police," he said. "But you never know what the police are going to do and what individual protesters may do things that instigate clashes."

Tea and Occupy

- The Independence Hall Tea Party Association will host its fourth-annual Independence Day rally, "Celebrate American Exceptionalism," at the Independence Visitors Center Ballroom.
- Unendorsed Occupy spin-off The 99 Percent Declaration is holding a "Continental Congress 2.0" at the Philadelphia Convention Center to petition the federal government for a redress of grievances. The group plans to march to Independence Hall on July 4.
- Pennsylvania Society of the Sons of the Revolution will hold its annual "Let Freedom Ring" celebration of the Declaration of Independence signing at Independence Hall.
- Occupy's National Gathering will hold a massive final march to Independence Mall that is expected to draw thousands of participants from around the country.

Pot plants found in South Philly

Police discovered a major pot plant operation in South Philadelphia yesterday afternoon, according to reports, which may have included up to 300 marijuana plants. Officers were seen pulling the large green plants from a rowhouse near 12th and Reed streets. No details on arrests or charges were released by police last night. METRO

Unidentified body found in the Schuylkill River

FAIRMOUNT. A body was found in the Schuylkill River yesterday under the Vine Street Expressway Bridge, police said.

A caller spotted the body and tipped authorities off around 10:30 a.m. The police marine unit retrieved the man from the water.

Police said the only information they could determine is the body is that of a black male. The Medical Examiner will conduct an investigation into the man's identity and cause of death. METRO/AW

Tax lien adds to trouble facing son of Rep. Fattah

CENTER CITY. U.S. Rep. Chaka Fattah's son is in more legal hot water, as the city of Philadelphia has filed a tax lien against Chaka Fattah Jr. for unpaid business privilege taxes, reports said.

The lien filed two weeks ago is for taxes, penalties and interest owed in 2010 and 2011, the Inquirer reported. In February, the FBI delivered subpoenas to Fattah's condo at Residences at the Ritz and an office of his. METRO/SDL

▶ A potential July 4 cabbie strike has been averted.

City cabbies won't strike after all on July Fourth

Taxi Workers Alliance of Pennsylvania president Ronald Blount said yesterday that it will be business as usual for city cabs tomorrow.

The news comes days after he told several media outlets that, in response to a piece of legislation signed by the state House and Senate Sunday and submitted to Gov. Tom Corbett, drivers planned to walk off the job on July Fourth, bringing traffic to a halt.

Cabs also circled Center City Friday afternoon in a horn-honking motorcade protesting the bill, which would put 15 wheelchair-accessible taxis on the street for 10 years and give the Philadelphia Parking Authority more oversight in governing cabs.

But Blount said that one of his main concerns regarding the legislation, a provision requiring the driver-passenger partition in taxis to be removed, has been addressed.

Blount said that removing the barrier would create a safety hazard for drivers. "There are still parts of the bill that are going to cause problems," he said. "But they sent a letter saying even though it's in the bill, they put it in writing that [the partition] is not going to come out."

It is tacked-on provisions such as these, Blount said, that are sparking opposition to the bill.

"We're going to have a meeting with our membership this Wednesday and we'll decide then what we're going to do," he said. "Whether we need to file a lawsuit against this bill or what action we need to take."

"When we discussed it with our membership, drivers said, 'It's okay, we're going to work July the Fourth.'" BLOUNT

Jobs, refinery both saved at new Philly 'energy hub'

RIKARD LARMA/METRO

▶ The Sunoco refinery will morph into an energy hub.

More than 800 jobs at Sunoco's refinery in South Philadelphia will be saved under a joint partnership that will convert the East Coast's largest refinery into an energy hub.

Sunoco will partner with global asset manager The Carlyle Group to preserve the refinery, which was scheduled to close in August as the company struggled to maintain profits. The commonwealth will also kick in grant funding that will help upgrade the facilities and create 100 to 200 new jobs and thousands of construction jobs, officials said.

The joint venture will be called Philadelphia Energy Solutions and Phil Rinaldi will serve as chief executive officer. The facility will continue to produce fuel and possibly expand into other ventures related to the Marcellus Shale. Under the agreement, Sunoco will have a minority interest and Carlyle be the majority owner and oversee the day-to-day operations. The deal not only saves hundreds of jobs, but the venture will also maintain critical fuel supply in the U.S. The refinery processes 330,000 barrels of oil per day.

"It is an example of the private and public sectors working closely together to ensure this refinery, an important economic engine of the region, continues to operate," Mayor Michael Nutter said.

Young duo attack man, hold up takeout

Police are searching for two young men who assaulted an older worker during a robbery at a Germantown takeout restaurant Friday.

The incident happened at 5:30 p.m. at the Chinese Restaurant on 129 W. Chelten Avenue, police said. While the victim was at the counter, the two suspects entered the restaurant and pretended to wait for service when one of the suspects punched the man, knocking him to the ground. They took the victim's wallet and fled on foot west on Chelten Avenue towards Knox Street.

The suspects are described as black males in their early 20s. One suspect has short hair, thin build, was last seen wearing a gray tank top, blue shorts and blue sneakers. The other was seen wearing a white T-shirt, light blue shorts and black and white sneakers.

Anyone with information about the incident is asked to contact police at 215-686-TIPS (8477) or text a tip to 773847. METRO/SDL

News in brief

NEW YORK. A quarter of women in a new survey admitted to deliberately posting ugly pictures of their friends to social networking sites. According to the survey by a photo gift website, Mymemory.com, the majority of women posting the photos said they did so after falling out with their friends, while nearly a third said they were taking revenge on people who had done the same to them. Two fifths of women also admitted deliberately posting photographs of their friends without make-up. Even when asked to permanently delete the unflattering picture from Facebook, a fifth of women refused to do so. METRO

2.1M still without power in wake of killer storms

NEW YORK. More than 2.1 million people from Illinois to Virginia remained without power yesterday morning after violent storms struck over the weekend, and a heat wave continued to blanket much of the region.

The storms left more than three million homes and businesses without the power needed to run air conditioners during the heat wave, and claimed at least 15 lives, mostly from falling trees and branches across the Midwest and Mid-Atlantic. REUTERS

Ex-astronaut dies on Jet Ski

CAPE CANAVERAL, FLORIDA. Alan Poindexter, a two-time shuttle astronaut, has died after a Jet Ski accident in Pensacola, Florida, NASA said yesterday.

Poindexter, 50, was riding jet skis with his two sons in Little Sabine Bay at Pensacola Beach on Sunday when the accident occurred, officials from the Florida Fish and Wildlife Conservation Commission told the Pensacola News Journal. REUTERS

SmithKline settles health care fraud case for $3 billion

GlaxoSmithKline Plc has agreed to plead guilty to misdemeanor criminal charges and pay $3 billion to settle what government officials said yesterday is the largest case of healthcare fraud in U.S. history.

The agreement, which still needs court approval, would resolve allegations that the British drugmaker broke U.S. laws in the marketing of several pharmaceuticals.

GSK targeted the antidepressant Paxil to patients under age 18 when it was approved for adults only, and it pushed the drug Wellbutrin for uses it was not approved for, including weight loss and treatment of sexual dysfunction, according to an investigation led by the U.S. Justice Department.

JOE RAEDLE/GETTY IMAGES

▶ As part of the settlement, GlaxoSmithKline agreed to strict oversight of its sales force by the U.S. government to prevent the use of kickbacks or other prohibited practices.

"A clear warning to any company that chooses to break the law."
JAMES COLE, THE NO. 2 OFFICIAL AT THE U.S. JUSTICE DEPARTMENT.

The company went to extreme lengths to promote the drugs, such as distributing a misleading medical journal article and providing doctors with meals and spa treatments that amounted to illegal kickbacks, prosecutors said.

In a third instance, GSK failed to give the U.S. Food and Drug Administration safety data about its diabetes drug Avandia, in violation of U.S. law, prosecutors said.

The misconduct continued for years beginning in the late 1990s and continued, in the case of Avandia's safety data, through 2007. GSK agreed to plead guilty to three misdemeanor criminal counts, one each related to the three drugs.

The agreement to settle the charges "is unprecedented in both size and scope," said James Cole, the No. 2 official at the U.S. Justice Department. He called the action "historic" and "a clear warning to any company that chooses to break the law." REUTERS

The settlement

- $1 billion in criminal fines
- $2 billion in civil fines
- Part of civil fines address allegations that, from 1994 to 2003, GSK underpaid money owed to Medicaid. The company had an obligation to tell the government its "best prices" but failed to do so.

Exchange program allows Philly, Iowa teachers to diversify classroom experience

COURTESY TEMPLE UNIVERSITY

Aspiring teachers usually receive their training in schools similar to the ones where they will work, which can end up giving them a narrow view of how learning happens. An innovative program gives two students from Temple University and two from Simpson College in Iowa the opportunity to explore each others' worlds.

Kaylin Womack and Kashonda Mann of Temple, and Cora Musfeldt and Meg Parks spent a month together this spring, with two weeks in Iowa and two in Pennsylvania. In each state, they not only visited local schools and taught sample lessons, they lived together and explored local arts and culture — a hot-air balloon ride in Iowa, a Phillies game here.

Quoted

"It's a matter of training your eyes to see the things you're not used to."
KASHONDA MANN

All four agree it was an eye-opening experience. "I thought I was pretty open to diversity," Mann said, "but it's easy to be sensitive to things you're used to. It's a matter of training your eyes to see the things you're not used to." If a student has his head down on the desk, is he being uncooperative, or is he tired? What's going on at his home, in his neighborhood?

The women developed strong friendships that they look forward to maintaining for years to come. "It's great having new friends to talk about education with," Womack said. "My friends here aren't necessarily interested, but all of us can discuss our ideas for hours."

Four years of Temple's STEP Program

This is the fourth year of the Simpson-Temple Exchange Program, which was funded by a Temple alumna. Carol Zahn Booth, class of 1947, had her own cross-cultural experiences as a teenager: She was the white daughter of the principal at a predominantly black West Philadelphia high school. The four STEP participants had dinner with Booth in Iowa, and all agreed that it was a highlight of their month.

Holmes finally freaked out by Scientologists

The average high-profile celebrity divorce provides us with maybe four days of gossip — give or take, depending on if they made us sit through a reality show documenting their fairy-tale wedding.

But this Katie Holmes and Tom Cruise split is shaping up to be the gift (and/or curse) that keeps on giving (but more likely, taking).

It seems Holmes had more than some vague inkling that Scientology wasn't the church she wanted her daughter, Suri, to grow up in. "Every move she made and everything she did was controlled," a source tells UsMagazine.com. "She felt like she was in 'Rosemary's Baby.' She felt she had to get out to save her daughter."

While we always detected an SOS signal in Holmes' eyes, she decided to file for divorce when Cruise wanted to ship Suri off to a Scientology offshoot known as the Sea Organization, sources tell TMZ. Part indoctrination boot camp, part pure Boy Scout kitsch, the Sea Org is effectively the Scientology mothership, an elite military-style sect that requires members to sign one-billion-year contracts and wear Navy-inspired uniforms on campus. (Think Catholic school with more spaceships, less enchanted arks.)

▶ Suri Cruise and Katie Holmes

"Katie and Tom have very different parenting views," another source tells UsMagazine.com. "Katie wants Suri to go to school with other children and have a grounded routine."

This one is really setting the bar high for "irreconcilable differences." What are the rest of us supposed to say when we get bored and see something shiny in the distance?

You can't shake us, Anderson Cooper

Apparently, Anderson Cooper wasn't officially out yet.

"The fact is, I'm gay, always have been, always will be, and I couldn't be any more happy, comfortable with myself, and proud," the journalist — with visible abs, we'd like to point out — tells the Daily Beast.

As for the announcement, Cooper felt it was time to go on record. "There continue to be far too many incidences of bullying of young people, as well as discrimination and violence against people of all ages, based on their sexual orientation, and I believe there is value in making clear where I stand," he says.

We commend you, Anderson — but don't think this will stop us from making inappropriate comments about those crystal blue eyes of yours.

Beyonce strikes a pose

We're going to let Beyonce have the last word on showing some major leg on stage. The singer accepted the award for Best Female R&B Artist at Sunday night's BET Awards, and, unlike Angelina Jolie, didn't come close to creeping us out.

Talking points

Tell us about it, boys

Matthew McConaughey had some trouble getting used to the costumes required for "Magic Mike." "It's a huge leap of faith to trust a thong," he tells the Hollywood Reporter. "It's your only protection up onstage. When I first tried it on, my body contorted. And I tried to get myself into every position to see what angles I was covering." His costar, Channing Tatum, agrees. "Sometimes a thong completely betrays you," adds Tatum. "[But] if everyone is dressed in a thong, pretty much any conversation is going to be funny. It's only weird if you make it weird."

▶ Kunis

Mila Kunis is an online dating pro

Mila Kunis cruises online dating sites, but she's not looking for herself. "I go on and I pick the guys for my friends," the star of "Ted" tells Glamour magazine. "It's online shopping! We all get together with our laptops and have a glass of wine. Then we message the guy. I'm just very honest and blunt." And she rewrites profiles, too: "I'm really good at 'About Me,'" she says. "I feel like I could never write anything about myself, because that's like a therapy session. But about your girlfriends? You just write what you love about your friends. If I didn't do what I do, I would do Internet dating instead of going out to bars. It makes so much more sense."

Happy belated, Lindsay Lohan!

Lindsay Lohan turned 26 yesterday, but she started the party early with a night out at Hollywood club Bootsy Bellows on Sunday. While there were cupcakes and dancing, the actress — who has been on good behavior while filming an Elizabeth Taylor biopic — appeared to keep it low-key. "There was a ton of alcohol at Lindsay's table; however, she didn't appear to be drinking," a source tells UsMagazine.com.

A super 'Spider-Man'

The new take on the Spider-Man story is saved from schlock by its charismatic leading couple But it doesn't evade every blockbuster pitfall

"The Amazing Spider-Man"
Director: Marc Webb
Cast: Andrew Garfield, Emma Stone
Rating: PG-13
Grade: ●●●○○

JAIMIE TRUEBLOOD

▶ These two make a new "Spider-Man" worth watching.

The first thing many of us thought when we heard there was a Spider-Man reboot afoot was, "What? Why?" Well, Marvel actually makes a good case for this new iteration to exist. We have Tobey Maguire replaced by Andrew Garfield and Kirsten Dunst, as Mary Jane Watson, replaced by Emma Stone as Peter Parker's lesser-known girlfriend, Gwen Stacy. Even though we only last saw Spidey five years ago in Sam Raimi's third installment with Maguire and Dunst, Garfield and Stone use their unique charisma to make the story their own. Given that these two have been dating offscreen as well, the chemistry we see between them is powerful.

Considering the director hired to direct this Spidey, Marc Webb, was the man behind the tender indie rom-com, "(500) Days of Summer" it's clear that this isn't going to be a "Transformers" sort of show, where bad CGI has the starring role. Webb's emphasis on relationships makes the whole superhero thing almost tastefully understated. The rest of the cast, too, makes it look effortless, with Rhys Ifans as Dr. Curt Connors and Sally Field and Martin Sheen as Peter Parker's aunt and uncle.

But every comic book movie must have those elements that say "we spent billions on this, so let's make sure everyone on the planet can follow it." There are some major gaps in logic and the occasional bonehead plot point (for example, The Lizard discovering who has been following him by conveniently finding a camera marked "Property of Peter Parker.") There are, also, those bad puns shouted by a masked Spidey as he web-traps a baddie, and silly one-liners uttered while he's swinging from building to building. But it is what it is. Falling within the conventions of the superhero movie, this one demands a certain degree of respect — and we'll give it.

July Fourth summer sips

Raspberry Bohemia Cocktail

This beer cocktail from Chef Rick Bayless makes for a good daytime sip that won't leave you feeling woozy by the time the fireworks start.

Ingredients

- 1½ cans (12 ounces each) frozen raspberry juice concentrate, thawed
- ¾ cup freshly squeezed lime juice
- 6 bottles (12 ounces each) Bohemia beer

BOHEMIA BEER

Chilled fresh raspberries

Directions

▶ Mix undiluted raspberry juice concentrate with lime juice in a pitcher. Refrigerate. When ready to serve, pour about ⅓ cup of the raspberry mixture into chilled beer glasses. Top with chilled Bohemia. Garnish with raspberries. Makes six cocktails.

Worth the paper it's written on

You don't have to work at Dunder Mifflin to love paper. Stationery makers from across the country gathered at this year's National Stationery Show in New York City to show off their wares. From wedding invitations to greeting cards, here are some of the trends we saw at the show.

Advice

Keep kids safe from Fourth of July fireworks

- Never let children play with fireworks of any type.
- View fireworks from at least 500 feet away.
- Respect safety barriers set up to allow pyrotechnicians to do their jobs safely.
- If you find unexploded fireworks, do not touch them. Immediately contact your local fire or police departments.
- If you experience an eye injury during a fireworks accident, seek immediate help from an ophthalmologist.

Source: American Academy of Ophthalmology

Adults need to be safe, too

- Never buy or use illegal fireworks. Their quality cannot be assured.
- Never hold lighted fireworks with your hand or place them near the body.
- Wear safety eyewear, and always have water nearby.
- Soak used fireworks in water before discarding.
- Never try to relight a firework.
- If you are injured using fireworks, get help immediately.
- Never allow young children to play with or go near sparklers. They can reach temperatures of more than 1,000 degrees.
- Never handle fireworks if you are under the influence of drugs or alcohol.

Jennifer Hudson's 'Lullaby'

PAMPERS AND INVISION

▶ You can download Jennifer Hudson's take on "Lullaby and Goodnight" for free at www.facebook.com/pampers.

When many people think of Jennifer Hudson's singing style, they think of a thunderous, room-shaking tone. But now, with her new Pampers-inspired adaptation of the classic "Lullaby and Goodnight," the multi-talented performer shows a gentler, sweeter side. We caught up with Hudson last week to discuss her new lullaby recording and how she balances being a mom and a superstar.

How did you incorporate your experiences as a mom into this lullaby?

"It's natural to be terrified, but it falls into place."
HUDSON, ON PARENTING

[By] imagining putting my baby to sleep: What do you want to say to your child? What do you want them to hear before they fall asleep to soothe them, to calm them down? That's why I did it. Anytime he calls me, I say, "That's my baby." I always tell him, "I love your hugs," "I love your kisses." So, I really took it from being a mom, and the real experience of that.

Is it difficult balancing motherhood with your work life?

It can be. That's why I love being from Chicago and living in Chicago. After we had our son, we decided we wanted to go back home, because to me that's what keeps you grounded. That's what keeps the foundation. And then you have family there, which is what keeps something normal, at least for him. I wanted him to have as much of a normal childhood as possible, and I felt like that was the best way to do that — by going back home. And although he is always in my world and watching mommy work, and seeing daddy wrestling — that's different, that will always make him grow up different — if he still has that base, that foundation that we had growing up, then that, to us, is what's important.

What advice do you have for new parents?

I remember when I first had my baby, I wanted all the guests to go home, but I was so terrified of being home alone with him. It's natural to be terrified, but it falls into place. You just fall into it.

Whose job is it anyway?

RE: "SOUNDING OFF ON HEALTH CARE": Mr. St. George, I frequently read your comments in Metro. While you do make some good points, the note you wrote appearing on July 2 is quite inaccurate.

I agree with your first point (it is not the president's job to create laws, that is the task of Congress); however, the rest of your prose is a typical anti-federal government rant based on how you personally believe our government is supposed to govern.

ACA is not unconstitutional. The Supreme Court ruled it did not violate the Constitution, hence the law is constitutional. The U.S. Federal Government has been involved in health care for nearly a century. You seem to be perpetuating a state's rights argument that was settled when we abandoned the Articles of Confederation, and then settled again during the Civil War. I have a history degree, and have worked in the health care industry for much of my life. Most of your arguments are based on conjecture, rather than substance. Also: Romney stated he would "repeal Obamacare on day one," which, as president, he would not have the power to do (again, a congressional task).

DOUG PORRELL, VIA E-MAIL

Pack your bags, we need coverage

Romney's potential choice for V.P. Marco Rubio said that there was a big difference between Romney's health care plan and Obama's. Romney's was on a state level; if you didn't like it you could move to a different state. Really? Sell the house, quit your job, pack up the kids and move to where they DON'T have health insurance? What a plan. Right now, more than 60 percent of bankruptcies in our country are due to runaway medical bills! "Obamacare" puts an end to that! Republicans think affordable, quality health care is a privilege. Wrong, it's a fundamental human right!

ROBERT LA ROSA, VIA E-MAIL

Unlocking the issue of 'job lock'

The Affordable Care Act frees an employee from "job lock," the reluctance to voluntarily terminate employment for fear of losing health care benefits, particularly if one has a preexisting condition. Now, it will take more than company health insurance to hold a valuable, experienced employee who should be better paid or better treated.

GLENN HAYES, VIA E-MAIL

The right to bear flags, wherever

RE: "FLAGS ARE FOR FLYING, NOT WEARING": On the contrary, wearing printed images of the U.S. flag on clothing simply reflects the spirit of Independence Day. There is nothing unpatriotic or disrespectful about showing your pride in being American; wear what you feel, you have the freedom of choice and no one has the authority to dictate what not to wear. Go ahead, proudly wear your patriotic prints or red white and blue colors. Celebrate your freedom, and show your love for the USA. M. KOZYRA, VIA E-MAIL

Horoscope

♋ Cancer June 21-July 22. If you are overly insistent about having your way, it will arouse similar instincts in those with whom you have one-on-one dealings. A deadlock could become inevitable.

♌ Leo July 23-Aug. 22. You're a considerate individual who is always happy to be helpful when you can. However, this noble characteristic is likely to be absent at present unless there is something in it for you.

♍ Virgo Aug. 23-Sept. 22. It's best to abide by the will of the majority, even when you are inclined to do otherwise. Don't be the only person in the group who is out of step.

♎ Libra Sept. 23-Oct. 23. Beware of a tendency to make your desired objectives far more difficult than they actually are. It's smart to always seek out the line of least resistance.

♏ Scorpio Oct. 24-Nov. 22. If you're not careful, discussions on politics or principles could quickly become volatile. Be extremely mindful of this if you encounter someone who holds opposing views.

♐ Sagittarius Nov. 23-Dec. 21. Before assuming any new indebtedness at this point in time, it is much wiser to take care of your old obligations first. Don't let yourself get boxed in by old bills.

♑ Capricorn Dec. 22-Jan. 19. Persons who are in accord with your way of doing things will find you to be a very pleasant individual to be around. Those who do things differently aren't likely to agree.

♒ Aquarius Jan. 20-Feb. 19. Arrange your schedule to be able to do everything in the easiest way possible, because you aren't likely to work too well under pressure. Being methodical in your actions would be a great first step.

♈ Aries March 21-April 19. An old, unresolved problem that always causes turmoil within the household might rear its ugly head again. If it does manifest, don't contribute to the hostilities.

♉ Taurus April 20-May 20. You won't be in the mood for having others tell you what to do. To help prevent such a thing, refrain from foisting your opinions on others.

♊ Gemini May 21-June 20. A powerful desire for self-gratification could be far more prevalent in you than usual, so you might have to be careful to avoid greediness when it comes to what you want.

Sometimes it's OK to stay at the jail or the monastery

Everyone likes a bit of variety. What better way to try out something new on vacation than by staying in an old monastery or a former school that has been reborn as a luxurious hotel? Members and editors of travel website Virtualtourist.com have compiled their own list of Top Converted Hotels. Here's a look at the Top 3:

Mandarin Oriental, Prague

Prague, Czech Republic
Prague's most atmospheric walks are in the Mala Strana neighborhood. One of these unique buildings is the Mandarin Oriental, housed in a converted Dominican monastery from the 14th century. Even the hotel group's signature holistic spa experience is set in an area of architectural heritage. The spa's entry, a glass walkway, both displays and preserves the remnants of a Gothic church found during the hotel's renovation. A stroll around the Mala Strana will give guests ample opportunities to indulge in the city's famous brews and hear some splendid classical tunes.

▶ The Liberty Hotel in Boston is quite, er, um, captivating.

NICOLAUS CZARNECKI/METRO

La Purificadora

Puebla, Mexico
One of the first projects to serve as a catalyst for the converted hotel trend is La Purificadora in Puebla, Mexico. The city of Puebla, located 62 miles east of Mexico City, was one of the most important colonial cities in Mexico. It served as the site for the significant victory over France that established the Cinco de Mayo holiday. Unlike the majority of converted hotels that are housed in refurbished palaces, monasteries or convents, the structure housing La Purificadora was born in 1884 as an ice factory. The archeologists and architects kept the building's original use in mind when designing the hotel — incorporating clear glass, pools and open spaces while allowing the adjacent church of St. Francis to be seen from almost any public area of the hotel. REUTERS

The Liberty Hotel

Boston, Massachusetts
The looming gray stone facade of the Liberty Hotel is slightly ominous, because although it's now a popular playground for adults, it was once home to the Charles Street Jail. The enormous atrium is beautifully preserved, the lighting fixtures providing a modern aesthetic with a historical slant. The architecture of the former jail has been brilliantly reconceived as an urban one-stop shop: The nightclub is in the former "drunk tank," cocktail areas occupy the surviving catwalks and two different eateries can be found in rooms with original jail cell details. And it's also right by the Red Line subway line.

Devil of a time: Flyers still in mix for Parise

Orange and Black waiting for free agent to decide ● Ten-year deal on table ● Five other teams in hunt

Waiting is the hardest part.

Keep checking social media. Keep scrolling the internet. Zach Parise will be making a decision soon on where he'll be hanging his skates next season.

How soon? Well, no one is positive. Parise is setting no timetable or deadline.

"It's such a long-term, important decision, you have to make sure you look at everything," Parise told reporters.

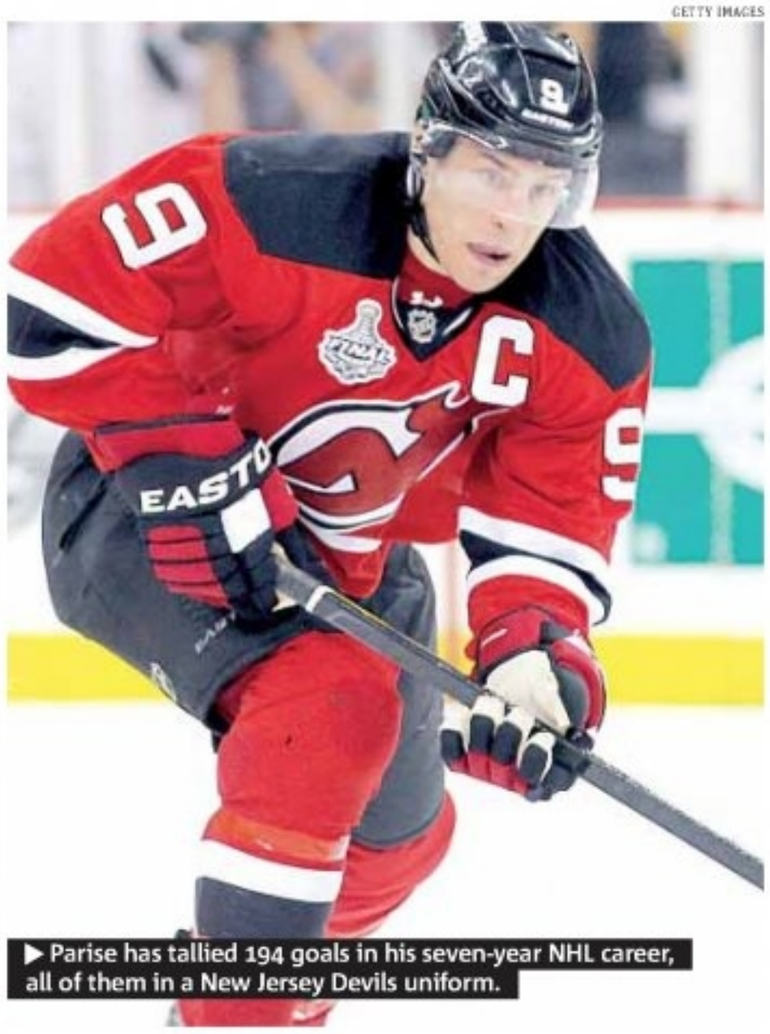
Parise, the NHL's most prized free agent, told reporters Monday that he wanted to fly home to Minnesota and consult his family before announcing anything. He has narrowed his list to five teams: the Devils, Wild, Penguins, Blackhawks, Red Wings and Flyers.

The Orange and Black have reportedly offered a 10-year contract worth more than $100 million. The Flyers have also made an offer for All-Star defenseman Ryan Suter.

Parise, of course, helped the Devils knock the Flyers out of the Stanley Cup playoffs. He scored eight goals (15 points) in New Jersey's run.

METRO

GETTY IMAGES



▶ Parise has tallied 194 goals in his seven-year NHL career, all of them in a New Jersey Devils uniform.

Three things to ponder about Parise ...

1 Simply offensive. We all watched the Penguins series. The Flyers have one of the best offenses in the entire NHL. Adding Parise (31 goals, 38 assists) would make it historic, especially when paired on a line with Claude Giroux (28 goals, 65 assists).

2 In the line of fire. Giroux is poised to become the next Flyers captain, but maybe Peter Laviolette gives it to a guy like Parise. At 27, he's not quite too old or too young to garner respect in the locker room. Plus, he's already a proven commodity having played in the Olympics and Stanley Cup Finals.

3 Take that, Jersey. The revenge factor. What better way to stick it to a fierce, division rival than by stealing their best player. You don't think losing to New Jersey in the playoffs doesn't stick in Ed Snider's craw? Yes, it most certainly does.

The Vanimal loves a good cheesesteak, just not one from Geno's

Worley's World

AS TOLD TO ED CONDRAN

A WEEKLY DIARY

Vance Worley likes to win, drive cool cars and eat. The big right-hander, like many of his peers, recently checked out Philly's most famous sandwich.

"I had to try some cheesesteaks," Worley said. "I went to both Pat's and Geno's."

Neither shop recognized Worley or offers his favorite, the chicken cheesesteak.

"I guess they don't have to make a chicken cheesesteak since they sell so many regular cheesesteaks there."

So is it Pat's or Geno's for The Vanimal?

"Geno's is the more flashy one, but they're rude," he said. "I did not like that at all. I will not go back there. If you don't order it right, you go to the back of the line. You have to say 'wiz with' or 'wiz without.'

It's no surprise that the laid-back, polite Sacramento native would feel that way. However, Worley did enjoy a cheesesteak place near the ballpark.

"It's right off [Interstate] 76 and it's really good. They're next to a tire place," said Worley, referring to Talk of the Town located on 3020 South Broad Street. "They're the only ones that recognized me. They asked me to take a picture, so they could put it on the wall. I didn't say no, but I didn't get anything for free. But I really liked the chicken cheesesteak they have there.

"I also like Delco's cheesesteak. I've had them in Dunedin [Florida]. I know they have one here [in Chadds Ford]. They have a very good chicken cheesesteak."

In terms of restaurants, Worley hasn't had time to sample much more local fare.

"By the time we get out from our games, it's too late for me to go to most restaurants," he said. "I would love to go to a good Italian restaurant. I like Chinese restaurants, but they're hit or miss in most cities — unlike California, where there are so many good ones. As time goes by, I'll know where more where things are here. I'll figure it out since I like to eat."

Quoted

"Geno's is the more flashy one, but they're rude. I did not like that at all. I will not go back there."

Do your depressive symptoms continue, despite ongoing antidepressant treatment?

We are seeking volunteers for the ARTDeCo Study. We hope to learn more about the effects and safety of a study drug in people with depression when it is taken with an ongoing antidepressant medication. We will also study how much drug is in your body and how long the body takes to get rid of it.

You may be eligible to participate if you:

- Are between the ages of 18-65 years
- Have a diagnosis of depression
- Are having an inadequate response to your current antidepressant treatment with a selective serotonin reuptake inhibitor (SSRI) or a serotonin norepinephrine reuptake inhibitor (SNRI)
